

When Human Adapt with the Nature

The existence of human in the way they adapt with the environment supports them to create tools for their daily needs, including to survive from threats. That is how the idea to use stone, woods, and other things surround as tools.