

Balanus

Balanus is one of invertebrate sea animal. Balanus has hard carapace covering all its body, made from cement. When still a larva, Balanus will swim like a plankton, until being adult, and then will be attach to other such as other animal carapace, and even in the wreck. Balanus has a very good adaptation to environmental changes, and easily due to hermaphrodite fertilization. Balanus are also dispersed by ships where they are attached to.